Dining Room

BARBARA WESTBROOK, WESTBROOK INTERIORS

The white-on-white dining room felt anything but ho-hum under Barbara Westbrook's skillful direction. "I wanted it to be a room that would entice everyone to stay seated after a meal and chat with one another," says the designer. Comfortable dining chairs, upholstered in an approachable wool, received just the right dose of formality from elaborate embroidered monograms. Lush linen curtains with a row of tiny pleats at the hem lent the room Westbrook's signature dressmaker polish. Above the table, Westbrook hung an eye-catching piece to create a strong focal point: a sculptural antique chandelier made of bronzed leaves, hand-cut crystals, carved wood and red-painted metal.
