High Profile, July 2021: A den's polished yet comfortable milieu perfectly reflects designer BARBARA WESTBROOK's clients and the way she, architect KEITH SUMMEROUR and builder BOBBY GARRETT approached the renovation of a 1980s-era Buckhead home.

BARBARA WESTBROOK

"I love working with professionals that I admire and for clients that are delightful. This was one of those projects. I have known Keith Summerour for what feels like a hundred years, Bobby Garrett trained me to be responsive to builders' questions when I was just starting out, and the project designer, Elizabeth Hanson, has been working with me for over 20 years. Whenever I see photos of this house, I remember the wonderful collaboration and how sincere and lovely our clients were."

JACKYE LANHAM

"I have always felt that when a home is built it develops its own personality. It dictates what it wants, and just like a person, if dressed in the wrong clothes, it feels awkward. This project was past decorating, designing and building; it was restoring the old soul of a house."

Heirloom Home, October 2021: In a Late Victorian home by JACKYE LANHAM, alcoves tucked beneath stairs were once treasured reading spots that continue to invite one to linger longer.
